PROMINENT MERCHANT IS CALLED

George E. Webb Succumbs After One Week's Illness of Pneumonia

SON IS UNABLE TO RETURN

Last Saturday evening marked the passing of one of Antioch's most prominent business men, Mr. George E. Webb, who has been closely associated with the business life of this village for many years. His death, due to pneumonia, took place after just a week of illness, which was of so serious a nature that little hope for his recovery was entertained, even from the beginning. A week ago last Saturday afternoon he complained of feeling ill, and went home from the store, from that time on his condition was serious, and although two trained nurses were in attendance and the best of medical aid was employed, he was unable to withstand the ravages of the disease and quietly passed away after a week's struggle with the grim destroyer.

His death coming at just this time is particularly sad, as his only son Ray is at Long Island, expecting to sail for France at any time, and may even now be on the way. Mr. Webb's illness dated from the day that his son's clothing and belongings arrived from Houston, Texas, together with a letter stating that the camp had provisions to last only until the following Monday at which time they would leave for the coast, expecting to sail most any day. On account of his leaving Houston on Monday and being on the road the entire week no word of his father's condition reached the son until the first of the week, even though he passed through Chicago the day before his father's death. The soldiers were forbidden to leave the train, but he, wishing to notify his parents of his whereabouts, requested a lady at the station to call up a relative in the city and ask him to phone to his parents in Antioch. This she did, but he was again on his way before the sad news could be communicated to him. However a telegram was received from him Monday evening in answer to one which told of his father's illness. Arrangements for the funeral were then put off awaiting his answer to the message which told of his father's death, in the hopes that he might be permitted to return home to attend the service. But Wednesday morning another telegram came from him stating that he would not be allowed to come.

The deceased was born in Antioch on June 23, 1858, and had he lived until the 23rd day of next month would have been sixty years of age. About thirty-six years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Dora Thayer of Millburn, and to them were born two children, Ray and Elizabeth, who with the mother are left to mourn his loss.

For a number of years he was associated with W. Strang who conducted a mercantile business at Lake Villa. In 1894 he returned to Antioch and engaged in the same business under the firm name of Webb Bros., which later became Webb Bros. & Perkins, and continued so for five years. Upon the retirement of Perkins the firm resumed its former name of Webb Bros., and continued so for twelve years, at the expiration of which time he sold his interest in the firm and engaged in the real estate business for three years. In 1909 he erected a brick building on Main street and opened a racket store which he conducted up to the time of his illness.

He is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Mary Boylan of Antioch; Mrs. Ruby W. Stevens of Virginia, Minn.; R. B. Webb, of Crystal Falls, Mich.; Mrs. Emma Hodges and Chase Webb, both of this place.

The deceased was a member of Sequoit lodge A. F. & A. M. and the funeral services which are to be held at the home at 1:30 o'clock and at the M. E. church at 2:00 this (Thursday) afternoon will be in charge of the Masons. Burial in the Millburn cemetery.

Mrs. George Webb and daughter, Elizabeth were planning on leaving this (Thursday) evening for New York in the hopes of arriving there in time to bid goodbye to Ray before he leaves for France but a telegram received from him said not to come as they might be disappointed.

Final Warning Issued To The Flour Hoarders

A final appeal is being made to the residents of Waukegan and Lake County to turn over to the retail dealers their surplus amounts of wheat flour. This is an appeal to patriotism and the government expresses the hope that this will be sufficient, but behind this appeal there is a veiled threat as to the fate that will befall "hoarders."

The following is quoted from a series of instructions that have been sent to the food administration of Lake County: "There are a number of loyal American citizens who will be pleased to avail themselves of this opportunity to return all surplus or excess supplies of flour they may now have. Many will gladly make sacrifices in making such returns. There are unfortunately others who must be reminded that there is a specific federal law against 'hoarding' which provides a penalty of $5,000 fine or two years imprisonment, or both, for hoarders."

"A FINAL OPPORTUNITY is now given to these to surrender their surplus supply and thus avoid and protect themselves against the possibility, and probability of prosecution in the federal court."

"The handling of this subject is an intensive job; one that must be over with and cleaned up in 30 days."

W. E. Webb, food administrator for Northern Illinois, sounded a similar warning recently when he addressed grocers in a meeting at Waukegan. He said that consumers are allowed but 30 days supply of flour and that if they exceed that they are hoarders. All such excess supplies should be turned over to local dealers who pay for it at the market price. The dealer may elect whether he will pay in cash or trade.

Dealers then must report to the food administration that they have received the flour and it will be taken from their allotment. This will release that much flour to the United States troops in France.

Even the farmers are included in the late food administration ruling. They are not allowed to keep a surplus of flour even if they have caused it to be ground from their own wheat. It is understood that prosecutions will start immediately after the 30-day period and those who are found to have excess amounts will be haled into the federal court. This, it is said, is the final warning.

The flour returned to the dealers is turned into the regular channels of trade.

Judge is Given Verdict

A verdict for Judge William Fenimore Cooper was returned by a jury in Judge Baldwin's court against the Chicago Examiner. An appeal will be taken, according to Attorney Roy D. Keehn, representing the paper. The amount of damages awarded was $75,000.

Judge Cooper, whose attorney was Sigmund David, charged that a series of articles published in the Examiner in 1913 misrepresented his judicial administration. Specifically the bill of complaint alleged that the Hearst publication had unfairly criticized the manner in which Judge Cooper tried sex cases.

It was alleged this criticism was intended to block the judge's action for a special grand jury he had appointed to investigate a contest between Macley Hoynes and W. A. Cunnea over the office of state's attorney.

Death of Ella S. Hendee

The following obituary was handed to us by a subscriber who was aware of the fact that many of our older readers were well acquainted with the deceased.

Ella S. Hendee was born in Lake County, Ill., July 26, 1850 and passed away at her home, on April 30, at the age of 67 years, 9 months and 4 days. Death was due to pulmonary edema.

Miss Hendee came to Hillsdale with the family of A. Worthing in 1889 in whose family she has lived for 38 years. She has been a member of the college church since coming to Hillsdale. She leaves to mourn her loss three sisters, Mrs. Albert Hiserodt and Miss Alma Hendee of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. W. R. Steat of Chicago, also the family of A. Worthing in whose home she had so endeared herself that she will be sadly missed.

Funeral services were conducted from the late home Thursday, May 2, with interment in the mausoleum at Oak Grove cemetery.

Palestine Vegetation

Some of the vegetation of Palestine is plainly listed in the Scriptures, thus: "Go forth unto the mount, and fetch olive branches, and pine branches and myrtle branches." This found in Nehemiah 7:16.

Death of Husband of Former Resident

From a clipping from Ashland, Ore., paper, we learn of the death of Prof. W. T. Van Scoy of that place, who was united in marriage to Mrs. Catherine S. Walker, a sister of Mrs. Jacob Van Patten and very well known in this locality, on the third day of last November.

The deceased was born in Virginia in 1848 and was educated in the Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill. In 1882 he removed to Oregon and in 1885 settled in Ashland, where he resided until the time of his death.

To him was due the organizing of the Normal schools in the state of Oregon. His home paper in speaking of him says, "Prof. Van Scoy's work was one of the most remarkable efforts ever put forth by any man in the educational circles in the state." The Prof. was not known in this locality but his widow was known here as Mrs. Kate Walker, has a large number of friends and acquaintances among our readers.

Elmer Taylor Enters Tank Service

When America entered the war, Elmer Taylor, son of W. T. Taylor, of this place was among the first to offer his services. He enlisted from Kenosha, in the cavalry but after two or three months of service was discharged for physical reasons and returned to Kenosha. However he was not satisfied with this week in company with two others enlisted in the war tank service. They left Tuesday night for Columbus, Ohio, where they will remain for a few days. From Columbus the boys will be transferred to Gettysburg, Penn., where they will be stationed permanently until date of sailing.

Mrs. Fred Hoeft, Lake Zurich; Mrs. Vivian Bonner, Millburn; Mrs. Nellie Delaney, Mill Creek; Mrs. E. P. Bacon, Yorkhouse; Mrs. Catherine Gilling, Rosecrans; Mrs. Ester Reeves, Russell; Mrs. Guy Simmons, North Prairie; Mrs. R. B. Miller, Zion City; Mrs. Kate Holtje, Prairie View.

Lists and Estimates Committee

To consist of one member of each bank in the jurisdiction of Lake County chapter.

Parade Chairman

Lieutenant G. G. Hoskins, Libertyville.

War Fund Cashier

Mr. Roy Wright, Libertyville

Twenty-one team captains with ten assistants each will canvass the territory thoroughly. Every home business house and factory will be visited and window flags given to all who contribute to the second Red Cross War fund.

The campaign will be carried, also, to schools, churches, clubs and fraternal organizations.

Saturday afternoon has been set for the day for the big motorcade throughout the county. On that afternoon forty autos will leave Libertyville at 1:30 o'clock, arrive in Grayslake at 2:00, in Lake Villa at 3:00, Antioch at 4:00, Fox Lake at 5:15, Round Lake at 6:15 and back to Libertyville at 7:15. They will be accompanied by the ladies band from Libertyville, the boys band from the same place, the Antioch band, the Allendale band and Company B, Sixth Reserve Militia and many other features.

Each village on the route has been asked to join in making this as big a feature as possible. Each village has been asked to provide a local parade marshal whose duty it would be to interest the school children and others and enlist their aid in forming a local parade to unite with the others as they enter the village. Every auto owner is requested to join in and if possible follow the motorcade on to the other towns. All auto parties are requested to carry a lunch for supper.

At present it is not known that Antioch will enter into the local feature as up to press time no one has been found who will act as manager.

However the motorcade will visit us just the same and all who assemble on Main street at four o'clock will be awarded by hearing a red hot speech by Mr. James Harrington Scott of Chicago a rapid fire, ten minute orator, and will also be favored with some good rousing band music.

Winners in Town School Contest

The list of pupils in the various schools who were successful in the town contests which were held recently, has just been made public. Those who ranked highest in each subject will compete in the county contests to be held at Libertyville, May 25. The pupils from each town who ranked first or second in the different subjects are to compete in the county contests. In case either of these is not able to be present and compete the one who ranked third will take his or her place, acting as alternate.

The winners in the Antioch school: Arithmetic—1, Emilie Forbrick 2, Howard Spafford, 3, Edward Girard. Reading—1, Mable Van Deusen; 2, Lewis Pregoner; 3, Helen Grav. Spelling—1, Roy Kennedy; 2, Ruth Kettelhut; 3, Mamie Dorsey. Penmanship—1, Isabel Pregoner; 2, Antonette Smart; 3, John Beebe.

Who Will Set The Flag Pole

In last week's issue we appealed to some patriotic citizen to circulate a paper and solicit donations for a fund to purchase a flag pole and flag for our village. In answer, B. F. Terrant of Beach Grove took up the work and in one afternoon raised the required amount.

Chase Webb then offered to donate the pole if some one would get it from the tamarack swamp. Now all we need is a couple of able bodied men to step up and donate their services in getting the pole and setting it in its proper position alongside the village hall. Who will volunteer?

Government is Take Control of Sugar on May 15

The federal control of the sugar industry on May 15, and sugar is not a necessary line. The government can do her canning for the fall months as she has done in the past. If posing the food administration for canning accommodation is to her who wants housewives. Every attention for hoarding wants of the government will be no reason, even on a hoarding, wives and any that practice in homes is to be distributed. There is no found for food purposes and dis- to be brought about sugar the sugar certificate is issued after May 15.

The sugar certificate will be in force for at least 30 days, and will apply to sugar and to the wholesale commodity. Hereafter no sugar certificate. Certificate issued for quantities from 50 pounds.

"Before these certificates can be obtained," said a food commissi- official, every manufacturer must submit a sworn statement to the food administration of the amount used last year for the corresponding period and the amount on hand at the present time.

"Manufacturers whose principal business is to preserve perishable foods will be allotted the same amount that they consumed last year."

Ice cream manufacturers also will be allotted the full amount, but this does not apply to the manufacture of icesherberts. In the same class are drug, glycerine and explosive manufacturers who require sugar for the product.

"Manufacturers of other non-edible products and tanners of leather will not be allowed any sugar."

"All other manufacturers who use sugar, no matter what contracts they have, will be allotted an amount not to exceed 80 per cent of the consumption last year."

Official Figures of the Liberty Loan Bond Sale

Now that the official figures of the third Liberty Loan bond sale are given out we can all shout "Three Cheers for Lake County" for not only did the county "go over the top" but it took its place as third in rank in the entire state with 188 per cent of its minimum quota subscribed and its maximum exceeded.

The total county subscriptions are $2,312,700, which with $353,000 to which Highland Park has made affidavit becomes $2,665,700. The Highland Park credits are subscriptions made in Chicago to which the county is entitled.

The total number of subscribers in the county was 11,464 or about one in six persons. The loan was almost entirely a people's affair, the banks taking a comparatively small share of the bonds.

The exact figures were slow in being turned in so that it was impossible to give them last week. The official figures are as follows:

The funeral services for Mrs. S. Orvis who died of an attack of pneumonia on Friday, May 10, at her late home in English Prairie were held Sunday at the house at two o'clock, with interment in the family cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Wilson of Har-vard. Mrs. Lavina S. Orvis was born at Salisbury, New Hampshire, Dec. 30, 1814, and came to English Prairie near Spring Grove, Ill., at the age of six months. In 1835 her father came and homesteaded the place where she resided at the time of her death. Later he went to New Hampshire for his wife and father and with the little child and aged parent of ninety years he made the trip by an ox team and arrived on July 2nd, 1842. She was married to Samuel L. Orvis, Nov. 4th, 1867, and raised seven children: Willard G. of Richmond, Clarence C. of Oskaloosa, Iowa, Mrs. Rose Madden of Spring Grove, Byron L. and Elmer V. of Waukegan, Everett of Round Lake and Frank, who was killed by a train at Shermerville, Ill.

White
Diarrhea

It's the chicks you raise that counts. No use wasting eggs by hatching chicks you do not raise. The big mortality in young chicks is during the first month. This is caused by bowel trouble that is a system of digestive disorders, and often called White Diarrhea.

Red Comb Chick Mash with Dried Buttermilk prevents this dread disease as the lactic acid bacilli found in the Dried Buttermilk builds tissue faster than the diarrhea bacteria can tear it down. Besides, it aids digestion by neutralizing the gas and acid caused by the reaction of indigestion—increases assimilation and acts as a disinfectant of the alimentary canal thus eliminating poisonous irritants.

Healthy, Sturdy Chicks Assured

To induce the necessary exercise feed Red Comb Chick Scratch in litter. Ask for bulletin "Save the Baby Chicks."

NIKKY IS TORN BETWEEN LOVE AND A SENSE OF DUTY TO HIS KING.

Synopsis.—Prince Ferdinand William Otto, heir to the throne of Livonia, is unwavering in his determination to preserve the kingdom for the marriage of his daughter, Hedwig, to the crown prince of the neighboring kingdom of Karnia. Hedwig, however, is in love with the crown prince of the neighboring kingdom of Karnia, and she is determined to marry him. Prince Ferdinand William Otto is a stern and determined man, and he is determined to see that his daughter is married to the crown prince of Karnia. Hedwig, on the other hand, is a young and beautiful woman, and she is in love with the crown prince of Karnia. She is determined to marry him, and she is willing to sacrifice everything for him. Hedwig, on the other hand, was a young and beautiful woman. She was in love with the crown prince of Karnia. She was determined to marry him, and she was willing to sacrifice everything for him.

"We Will Go Away, Nikky," She Said.

The eyes he turned on her were, as he claimed her, without hope. For there was no escape. Hedwig, with shining eyes, was already planning. "We will go away, Nikky," she said. "And it must be soon, because otherwise—" make a fresh start. Surely, after all, peace was the greatest thing in the world. The carriage drove on; Minna, on the box, crossed herself at sight of the church, and chatted with the driver, a great figure who crowded her to the very edge of the seat.

"I am glad to be here," she said. "I am sick of grandeur. My home is in Etzel." She turned and inspected the man beside her. "You are a new-comer, I think?"

"I have but just come to Etzel." "Then you cannot tell me about my people." She was disappointed.

"And you," inquired the driver, "you will stay for a visit?" "A week only. But better than nothing."

"After that, you return to the city?" "Yes, Madame. The countess—you would know, if you were Etzel-born—would know the countess is lady in waiting to her royal highness, the Archduchess Annunziata."

"So!" said the driver. But he was not curious, and the broken road demanded his attention. He was but newly come, so very newly that he did not know his way, and once made a wrong turning.

The countess relaxed. She slept that night. When she had breakfasted and dressed, she went out on a balcony, and looked down at the valley. Her eyes dropped to the old wall below, where in the sunshine the caretaker was beating a rug. Close to him, in intimate and cautious conversation, was the driver of the night before. Glancing up, they saw her and at once separated.

Gone was peace, then. The countess knew—knew certainly. "Our eyes see everywhere." Eyes, indeed—eyes that even now the caretaker raised furtively from his rug.

Nevertheless, the countess was minded to experiment, to be certain. For none is so suspicious, she knew, as one who fears suspicion. None so guilty as the guilty. During the forenoon she walked through the woods, going briskly, with vigorous, mountain-bred feet. No crackle of underbrush disturbed her. Swift turnings revealed no lurking figures skulking behind the trunks of trees. But where an ancient stone bridge crossed a mountain stream, she came on the huge driver of the night before reflectively fishing.

He saluted her gravely, and the countess paused and looked at him. "You have caught no fish, my friend?" she said.

"No, Madame. But one plays about my hook." She turned back. Eyes everywhere, and arms, great hairy arms. And feet that, for all their size, must step lightly!

On the second day she made a desperate return, and characteristically put it into execution at once. She sent for the caretaker. When he came, uneasy, for the Loscheks were justly feared in the countryside, and even the thing of which he knew gave him small courage, she lost no time in evasion.

"Go," she said, "and bring here your accomplice." "My accomplice, Madame! I do not—"

"You heard me," she said. He turned, half sullen, half terrified, and paused. "Which do you refer to, Madame?"

She had seen only the one. Then there were others. Who could tell how many others? "The one who drove here."

So he went, leaving her to desperate reflection. When he returned, it was to usher in the heavy figure of the spy.

"Which of you is in authority?" she demanded. "I, Madame. It was the spy who spoke."

She dismissed the caretaker with a gesture. "Have you any discretion over me? Or must you refer matters to those who sent you?"

"I must refer to them." "How long will it take to send a message and receive a reply?" He considered. "Until tomorrow night, Madame."

Another day gone, then, and nothing determined! "Now, listen," she said, "and listen carefully. I have come here to decide a certain question. Whether you know what that question is or not, does not matter. But before I decide it I must make a certain journey. I wish to make that journey. It is into Karnia."

She watched him. "It is impossible. My instructions—"

"I am not asking your permission. I wish to send a letter to the committee. They, and they alone, will determine this thing. Will you send the letter?"

When he hesitated, perplexed, she got up and moved to her writing table. "I shall write the letter," she said laughingly. "See that it is sent. When I report at the end of the time that I have sent such a letter, you can judge better than I the result if it has not been received."

He was still dubious, but she wrote the letter and gave it to him, her face proud and scornful. But she was not easy, for all that, and she watched from her balcony to see if any messenger left the castle and descended the mountain road. She was rewarded, an hour later, by seeing a figure leave the old gateway and start toward the village, a pale-faced man with colorless hair. A part of the hidden guard that surrounded her, she knew, and somehow familiar. But, although she racked her brains, she could not remember where she had seen him.

That day, toward evening, the huge man presented himself. He brought no observed the chancellor. "He is forty, sire."

"Aye," said the king. "And at forty a bad man changes his nature, and purifies himself in marriage! Non-sense, Karl will be as he has always been. But we have gone into this before. Only, I am sorry for Hedwig. Get rid of this young Larisch."

The chancellor sat reflecting, his chin dropped forward on his breast. "Otto will miss him."

"Well, out with it. I may not dismiss him. What, then?"

"It is always easy to send men away. But it is sometimes better to retain them, and force them to your will. We have here an arrangement that is satisfactory. Larisch is keen, young, and loyal. Hedwig has thrown herself at him. For that, sire, she is responsible, not he."

"Then get rid of her," growled the king.

The chancellor rose. "If the situation is left to me, sire," he said, "I will promise two things. That Otto will keep his friend, and that the Princess Hedwig will bow to your wishes without further argument."

"Do it, and God help you," said the king, again with the flicker of amusement.

The chancellor had gone home, walking heavily along the darkening streets. Once again he had conquered. The reins remained in his guarded old hands. And he was about to put the honor of the country into the keeping of the son of Maria Menrad, whom he had once loved.

So now he sat in his study, and waited. When he heard Nikky's quick step as he came along the tile passage, he picked up his pipe.

Nikky saluted, and made his way across the room in the twilight, with the ease of familiarity. "I am late, sir," he apologized. "We found our man, and he is safely jailed. He made no resistance."

"Sit down," said the chancellor. And, touching a bell, he asked Mathilde for coffee. "So we have him," he reflected. "The next thing is to discover if he knows who his assailants were. That, and the person for whom he acted—however, I sent for you for another reason. What is this about the Princess Hedwig?"

"The Princess Hedwig!"

"What folly, boy! A young girl who cannot know her own mind! And for such a bit of romantic trifling you would ruin yourself. It is ruin. You know that."

Nikky remained silent, a little sulken.

"The princess went to the king with her story this evening. The boy started. 'A cruel proceeding, but the young are always cruel. The expected result has followed: The king wishes you sent away.'"

"I am at his command, sir."

The chancellor filled his pipe from a bowl near by, working deliberately. Nikky sat still, rather rigid.

"May I ask," he said at last, "that you say to the king that the responsibility is mine? No possible blame can attach to the Princess Hedwig. I love her, and—I am not clever. I show what I feel."

"The immediate result," said the chancellor cruelly, "will doubtless be a putting forward of the date of her marriage." Nikky's hands clenched. "A further result would be your dismissal from the army. One does not do such things as you have done, lightly."

"Lightly!" said Nikky Larisch. "Heaven!"

"But," continued the chancellor, "I have a better way. I have faith, for one thing, in your blood. The son of Maria Menrad must be his mother's son. And the crown prince is attached to you. Not for your sake, but for his, I am inclined to be lenient. What I shall demand for that leniency is that no word of love again pass between you and the Princess Hedwig."

"It would be easier to go away," Nikky closed his eyes. It was waiting to be a habit, just as some people crack their knuckles. "We need our friends about us," the chancellor continued. "The carnival is coming, always a dangerous time for us. The king grows weaker day by day. A crisis is impending for all of us, and we need you."

Nikky rose, steady enough now, but white to the lips. "I give my word, sir," he said. "I shall say no word of—of how I feel to Hedwig. Not again. She knows—and I think," he added proudly, "that she knows I shall not change. That I shall always—"

"Exactly!" said the chancellor. It was the very pitch of the king's dry old voice. "Of course she knows, being a woman. And now, good night."

Nikky Makes a Promise.

The chancellor lived alone, in his little house near the palace, a house that looked strangely like him, overhanging eyebrows and all, with windows that were like his eyes, clear and concealing many secrets. A grim, gray little old house, which concealed behind it a walled garden full of unexpected charm. And that, too, was like the chancellor.

Mathilde kept his house for him, mended and pressed his uniforms, washed and starched his linen, quarreled with the orderly who attended him, and drove him to bed at night.

Mathilde was in touch with the people. It was Mathilde, and not one of his agents, who had brought word of the approaching revolt of the copper-smiths' guild, and enabled him to check it almost before it began. A stoic, this Mathilde, with her tall, spare figure and glowing eyes, stoic and patriot. Once every month she burned four candles before the shrine of Our Lady of Sorrows in the cathedral, because of four sons she had given to her country.

On the evening of the day Hedwig had made her futile appeal to the king, the chancellor sat alone. His dinner, almost untasted, lay at his elbow. It was nine o'clock. At something after seven he had paid his evening visit to the king, and had found him uneasy and restless.

"Sit down," the king had said. "I need standing, old friend."

"Standing, sire?"

"I have had a visit from Hedwig. Rather a stormy one, poor child." He turned and fixed on his chancellor his faded eyes. "You still think it is the best thing?"

"It is the only thing."

"But all this haste," put in the king querulously. "Is that so necessary? Hedwig begs for time. She hardly knows the man."

"Time! But I thought—" He hesitated. How say to a dying man that time was the one thing he did not have?

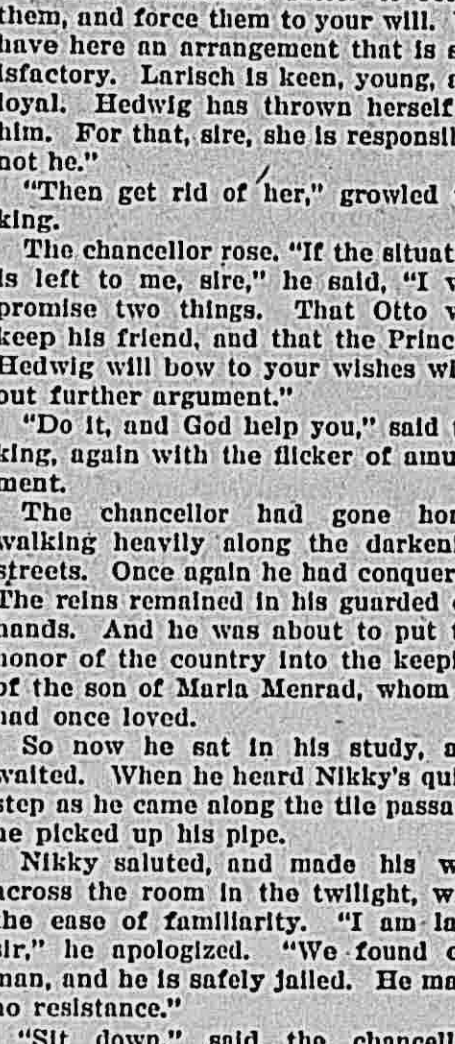

"Another thing. She was incoherent, but I gathered that there was some one else. The whole interview was cyclonic. It seems, however, that this young protegee of yours, Larisch, has been making love to her over Otto's head."

Mettlich's face hardened, a gradual process, as the news penetrated in all its significance.

"A boy and girl affair, sire. He is loyal. And in all of this, you and I are reckoning without Karl. The princess hardly knows him, and naturally she is terrified. But his approaching visit will make many changes. He is a fine figure of a man, and women—"

"Exactly," said the king dryly. What the chancellor meant was that women always had loved Karl, and the king understood.

It's Poor Economy to Endure a Bad Back

In these days of rising prices, we need every ounce of strength and the ability to do a full day's work every day. The man or woman with weak kidneys is half crippled. Sore, aching kidneys; lame, stiff back, headache, dizzy spells and a dull, tired feeling and urinary disorders are daily sources of distress. You can't afford to neglect kidney weakness and make it easy for gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease to take you. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today. They have helped thousands. They should help you.

Personal Reports of Real Cases

AN ILLINOIS CASE.
Geo. Mahurin, 112 Main St., Canton, Ill., says: "I used to have sharp pains across my back just over my kidneys. Many times I was laid up for three or four days at a time. I couldn't get around to do anything. My kidneys were in a weak and disordered condition and I was obliged to get up several times at night. Every little move sent sharp pains through my back and more than temporary relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They soon helped me and the trouble disappeared. Since then I have never been bothered with my kidneys, which speaks well for Doan's."

AN IOWA CASE.
Mrs. Henry Witt, 6th and Michigan Sts., Storm Lake, Iowa, says: "Kidney complaint came on me and undermined my health with a distressing pain and weakness. The kidney secretions gave me no end of trouble, my limbs swelled and there were puffy sacs under my eyes. Others of my family had been benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills and I used them. They relieved me from the first and soon restored me to good health. Since then my kidneys have given me very little trouble. I can't praise Doan's enough."

Both Ends Against The Middle

(The Packer)

The consumer wants to pay a low price for meat.

The farmer wants to get a high price for cattle.

The packer stands between these conflicting demands, and finds it impossible to completely satisfy both.

The packer has no control over the prices of live stock or meat, and the most that can be expected of him is that he keep the difference between the two as low as possible. He does this successfully by converting animals into meat and distributing the meat at a minimum of expense, and at a profit too small to be noticeable in the farmer's returns for live stock or in the meat bill of the consumer.

Swift & Company's 1917 transactions in Cattle were as follows:

	Average Per Head
Sold Meat to Retailer for	$68.97
Sold By-products for	24.09
Total Receipts	93.06
Paid to Cattle Raiser	84.45
Balance (not paid to Cattle Raiser)	8.61
Paid for labor and expenses at Packing House, Freight on Meat, and Cost of operating Branch distributing houses	7.32
Remaining in Packer's hands as Returns on investment	$ 1.29

The net profit was $1.29 per head, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound of beef.

By what other method can the difference between cattle prices and beef prices be made smaller, and how can the conflicting demands of producer and consumer be better satisfied?

GETS HEART BALM WEDS OLD SUITOR

Irish Beauty Who Received $100,000 Is Now Happily Married.

RICH OLD MAN PAID

Give Secretary Tidy Fortune After Breaking Engagement—She Returns to Ireland and Marries Old Playmate.

New York. — Miss Honora May O'Brien, the "colleen of Skibbereen," who collected $100,000 heart balm from John B. Manning, an aged and wealthy stockholder of New York city, has been secretly married in Ireland to one of her childhood playmates, according to a letter forwarded by the young Irish beauty to one of her friends in this country. The bridegroom is John Daly, a farmer of Skibbereen, who wanted to marry her three years ago when she came to America.

Jilted Girl Received $100,000.
When Miss O'Brien arrived in this country she went to work in Manning's Wall street office. Manning, who was eighty-three years old, surprised his friends by announcing, early in December of 1916, that he was about to marry Miss O'Brien. The day before the wedding was to have taken place, Manning telephoned to Cardinal Farley that there would be no wedding; that the six children of his first wife had strongly opposed the match, and that he was too old to marry a woman of twenty-eight. It had been said that he had arranged to settle $500,000 upon his bride.

When the wedding was called off Miss O'Brien began an action for $1,000,000 against Manning. A jury gave a verdict of $225,000, which the presiding judge reduced to $125,000. Manning's lawyers threatened to appeal and Miss O'Brien accepted $100,000, returning to Ireland almost at once. At the trial Miss O'Brien testified to the ardent wooing of her aged suitor.

Surprised His Friends.

while the latter tried to impress the jury with the belief that the Irish beauty had made the advances.

It Was That.

In her letter to an American friend, the bride wrote: "I have changed my name to Daly. Wasn't it quick work? You may remember my telling you about the chap who wanted to marry me three years ago—well he has had his wish. We are very happy."

"Of course, we have known each other since childhood and the two families always were very friendly. We didn't intend to be married so soon, but in view of the fact that I had no home and a great many other reasons, we changed our mind."

LOSES BRIDE OF 10 MINUTES

Fifty Year-Old New York Man Is Trying to Locate Her.

Urbana, Ill. — Although 50 years have elapsed since A. H. Keach of Norway, N. Y., was married and "lost" his bride of ten minutes, he has sent a letter to the county attorney here asking him to locate her. He describes his wife as a "banker's daughter," having forgotten her name. She was seventeen years of age at the time, he says. Keach declares he was married to the girl while he taught school at Tolono, near here, in 1871.

They met on a train as Keach was leaving for New York, he writes, and were married by the county judge of Urbana.

Ten minutes later they became separated and he has not seen his wife since.

Felt Sorry for Them.

New York. — "I used to feel sorry when I saw a pretty girl living all alone—and, well, I just had to marry her."

Such was the defense entered by Sydney Lee Shellgrave, indicted for bigamy in general sessions here. Shellgrave testified he was married four times, that he could remember—and maybe more. He declared he sold a hair restorer and could not withstand the charms of pretty unmarried girls.

THINKING MORE ABOUT DEATH

War's Effect on the Minds of Englishmen Is Declared to Have Been Extraordinary.

In England the effect of religious thought of three years and a half of war has been extraordinary. The revival of religious fervor, in many instances the direct result of personal loss by death or fear of impending loss, has reflected itself in English literature.

The most astonishing of all recent conversions is that of H. G. Wells, hard-headed and yet tender-hearted Socialist, who now writes of religion as if it were a discovery of his own.

Another writer who has been led by the war to faith in a life beyond the grave is Sir Oliver Lodge, whose book, "Raymond," dealing with the communications said to have been received from his son, is one of the phenomena of present-day literature.

The war is making the world think intently about death and what comes after and, in consequence, is urging them to establish a closer relation during life with the eternal.—Exchange.

Tree That Wouldn't Die.

One of the giant redwoods in Mendocino county, California, has shown that in spite of its combined foes, the wind and the forest fire, it has made up its mind to keep right on living in the same spot where it has stood for dozens of years. During a terrible storm on the mountain the top of this big tree was broken off, and later the trunk was nearly destroyed by a forest fire; yet enough vitality remained for a young tree to rise from the roots of the older one and to grow up within the wide trunk which serves as a protection against the wind. The original tree was a magnificent specimen more than 11 feet in diameter, towering high in the air, and its youthful successor should be of goodly size when the old stump is ready to fall away.—St. Nicholas.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these blemish spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

She Was Used to It.

Mrs. Patricia remarked to the new servant: "I suppose, Mary Ann, you overheard my husband and me conversing rather earnestly this morning?"

"Indeed, I did that, mum," replied Mary Ann.

"I hope that you did not consider that anything unusual was going on."

"Never a bit, mum. I wasn't had a husband myself, mum, and never a day passed that the neighbors didn't believe that one or the other of us would be killed entirely."

Encouraging.

"There's a man outside who says he's your tailor and wants to see you about a bill."

"Tell him I've gone to attend the funeral of a rich relative from whom I expect to inherit a great deal of money."

"Have you lost a relative, sir?"

"No; but that fellow has been here so many times I feel I ought to say something that will make him feel better."

Do you feel tired and "worn-out?" Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "drugged out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilo-ache, pain or soreness in the joints, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or red-iment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. an ocean of unspeakable pain"

"I'm afraid that's all I can spare"

You're a regular, red-blooded, true-blue American. You love your country. You love that flapping, snapping old flag. Your heart thumps hard when the troops tramp by. You're loyal---100%!

You intend to---you want to---help win the war in a hurry.

"Sacrifice? Sure," you've been thinking. "Just you wait till they really need it." And you've honestly thought you meant that too.

But---look yourself in the eye, now, and search up and down inside of your heart---did you mean it? Did you really mean "sacrifice"?

Listen: You feel poor. This third Liberty Loan, the high prices, the Income Tax---you've done your bit. You feel that you've given all you can spare.

What? Then what did you mean? What's that you said about loving your country? What did you think the word "sacrifice" means?

Surely you didn't mean, did you, to give only what you can spare?

What about our boys who are giving their lives in the trenches? Are they giving only what they can "spare"?

How about those mothers and little "kiddies" in the shell-wrecked towns of that war-swept hell:---hungry---ragged---sobbing---alone? Giving up their homes, their husbands, their fathers.

While we---over here with our fun and our comforts---we hold up our heads and feel patriotic because we have given---what? Some loose bills off the top of our roll. "We've given all we can spare!"

Come, come! Let's quit fooling ourselves. Let us learn what "sacrifice" means. Let us give more than we can spare---let us "give till the heart says stop."
